Geneva (Switzerland), July 16th, 2013 – New Access SA, a leading provider of front office solutions to banks and financial institutions, in its continued expansion to strengthen its product development team, today announced the recruitment of a swathe of highly experienced industry professionals.

“New Access continues to attract professionals with extensive industry knowledge” commented Nello Conte, Chief Technical Officer at New Access. “I have worked with many of the new team during my time at HP and they are all very aware of the market expectations in terms of technology platforms, development and security.” Conte continued.

Nello Conte is tasked with driving the planned business expansion at New Access. Nello and his team will manage the software architecture development ensuring New Access is at the forefront of new and innovative product development projects.

The new development team members are:

Hicham Aissaoui – an experienced professional in secured technology applications who will enhance the security layer of New Access solutions.

Fabio Benigni - has extensive experience in enterprise systems with both open source and legacy systems and will lead the architecture of New Access products.

Marino Lapietra - has a wide knowledge of regulatory compliance to support the implementation regulation rules and define business process.

Giulio Napoli – an expert in Cloud Architecture who will support the strategy to move next generation of products to SaaS and PaaS models.

“Adding talent of this calibre brings us closer to our technical basis for our new generation of products. Our new colleagues all have extensive experience and understand the discipline and culture of working in large international companies.” comments John Perks, CEO of New Access.
